“ I just found this page. Sad to hear of my friends passing. Randy and I met in high school in 1970. We stayed in touch over the years and shared a lot of good times. We had a common love for the sea, both of us making our living as merchant sailors. Randy is in a better place. He is free of the pain he endured while living on this earth. I hope to see my friend again some day. Smooth seas, randy.

“ We always looked forward to the trips Randy and his family made to visit all of us up north. My mom, Aunt “Pete” to everyone, recalls one of the visits back in the 1960’s when we were playing volleyball in the yard on Uncle John’s farm. The ball landed in Aunt Goldie’s flowers, and Randy being Randy, dove head first into the flower bed without looking. We’re always going to miss Randy. RIP

“ Randy's parents, Bill and Bow Scott provided a home on boy scout night at the Presbyterian in front of their Greenville Home in Pennsylvania, Troupe 54 as I recall. The oldest Scott boy, Brad, now known as Buffalo" Bill, was just a youngster before the Scott tribe moved to Orlando then Tallahassee. My oldest Lori, is a captain of ore boats on the Great Lakes so those two had a connection. Several times over the years one or more of the Scott boys, often including Randy, made the pilgrimage back to the Scott farm in Mercer County, Pennsylvania including visits to many of their relatives including our own farm in Otter Creek Township, to see my mother, Catherine, Katy, Scott Reinhart, who was the younger sister of Randy's dad, Bill. Moderation was not one of Randy's characteristics; He lived life on the fast line and mostly on his own terms. RIP

“ To the Scott Family.....Amen, Randy, Amen

I remember when, in the second grade, he brought all of us in Mrs. Alderman's class, our own copy of the multiplication times tables, from his father's workplace. It was printed in brown ink and so used by me!

And...all the days of the Scott's and the overlapping with the Adairs....

Randy lived his whole life. Yes, he did.

Love,

Peggy Adair
